There are innumerable dogs and "curs of low degree" running at large in the city at present that are without the brass check appended to their necks, or a muzzle over their mouths. This is the season, said to be, when the canines perversely go rabid, and unceremoniously insert their poisonous fangs into the flesh of citizens. Would it not be well, as a preventative against hydrophobia, for the City Council to have enforced the ordinance against the promiscuous ranging around of villainous curs?

THE WEATHER-THE CROPS -From all parts of the State we hear that great damage has been done to the crops by the wet and humid weather of the past three weeks. The new wheat in the stack is growing, and some has spronted so much as to look decidedly green. If the present weather continue much longer it will ruin the prospects for corn, which were very flattering up to the commencement of the late heavy rains. Just at present the agricultural indications ap pear decidedly blue, and they are having their effect in the rise of the prices of the products of the field Old wheat has advanced fifty cents a bushel within the past three weeks-prime red will now command, readily, $1 85 a bushel, and prime white $1 95 Family flour is selling at $10 50, with an upward tendency. The rains are not confined to Indiana, and we notice that the crops are suffering from the same cause in the neighboring States. The effect is contagious, and we hear famine prices discussed on all sides, and some are so fearful of the future that they are now purchasing, for family use, a year's supply of breadstuffs. War, pestilence and famine are often concomitants, and such may be the order of Providence in regard to us as a nation, but if chastenings come we must not forget that "Behind a frowning providence, He bides a smiling face."
